	I located and stopped this individual based on this post. He advised he was trying to locate a package that had been delivered to a wrong address. He used the information provided to him by the tracking details of his order. When he used a ride service to get to the location the driver took him to this home. He looked at a package that was on the porch and saw that it was not his package so he left it. He provided me the address of where the package was delivered to. I drove to the location and did in fact locate a package with his name on it from the vendor he said shipped it. He cooperated fully by providing all necessary documentation of the transaction, proving it was legitimate.
